Alfa Romeo has lost World Superbikes points leader Jonathan Rea by a single point after a five-race, three-team pile-up in Assen that removed the Finn from the title race. Rea had led the championship until his exit on lap 16 at the Dutch track, which saw him crash out of first place with a mechanical problem. His team-mate, Eugene Laverty, was able to finish second, with a two-second lead over series leader Fabio Quartararo. Former MotoGP rider Randy de Puniet finished third, while Nicolas Terol and Marco Melandri rounded out the top five. Rea was able to recover from his crashing to finish 13th on the road, while he was still leading the championship. He said: "I'm really unlucky to have crashed and a big pity for the fans. I'm very sorry for the fans because I'm sure they would have been very happy if I won this race. "Unfortunately I had a mechanical problem, but we were able to fix it. We have done a big step forward with the new bike and I am not worried at all with the new bike." Rea's title rival Quartararo has taken victory in the last three races to take an overwhelming seven-point lead in the championship. "For sure I am struggling a little bit with the big gap between us," said Quartararo. "I don't think I have made many mistakes this weekend. I have done my pace for everything in the beginning of the race, and I think I am doing a good job to be honest." Laverty said: "For sure on the first lap we tried to gain some positions but unfortunately the guys in front of us are not willing to push and they stayed up front. "There was lots of contact and we couldn't go through the traffic, but on the second lap I think I
