Atlas (ABA).A Dozen Years of Federal Digital Literacy Training The Office of Public Engagement and Information Technology (OPEIT) at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) is preparing for the upcoming 17th year of Federal Digital Literacy (FDL) training, and HHS is providing training for the first time to several agencies, including USDA and the Social Security Administration. This training takes place in a two-day block, with two-and-a-half hours of training per day. Day one, which begins at 8:00 a.m. and runs until 3:00 p.m., is an introduction to the FDL program. Day two, which begins at 8:00 a.m. and runs until 4:30 p.m., is a continuation of the first day’s training, covering FDL skills for professional digital workers. “We are delighted to see that HHS’s training for the program will be mandatory, which will help bring more individuals into the FDL program,” said Lauren Ferguson, Director of the FDL Program. “HHS has played a role in promoting the FDL program over the past 17 years, and their participation in this program will help create more use of technology to meet the needs of the public.” In addition to HHS, several other federal agencies participated in the first-ever FDL training conducted by the Office of Science and Technology Policy (OSTP) in June. These agencies include: The U.S. Department of
